She's known for a fierce sense of style and Ruby Rose made sure she maintained her fashionable reputation when she indulged in a spot of sun basking on Monday. Currently living in Los Angeles with her fiancée Phoebe Dahl, the model posted a shot of herself to Instagram reclining on a lounge by the pool.

She wore a swimsuit emblazoned with a panthers head poking through some foliage.

Catching some rays: Ruby Rose took to Instagram on Monday to post some shots of herself indulging in a spot of sunbaking in Los Angeles with her pet pig Hazel

However she had a very unusual accessory for her session in the sun - completing the look with her pet pig Hazel who was snuggled up on her lap.

The swimsuit Rose, 28, was wearing is from the new collection by Australian designers We Are Handsome - a brand she has long been a supporter of.

Called The Panther, it showcased her long slim legs, while the sweet 50's style haterneck accentuated her décolletage.

Poolside posing: The model dangled her legs in the water as she gazed up and pulled a pose in the sunshine

Taking a break: The TV presenter then got some company and was joined by the dogs

The couples dogs could be seen on the edge of the picture.

She then took the opportunity to take a dip and cool off - but it seems Hazel wasn't very keen in getting in on the action, and in another photo can be seen running next to the model as she enjoys a swim.

The TV presenter, who has always been known for being style savvy, has recently changed her grungy look to something a little more sophisticated.

Known for posting shots of herself in onesies, chains and scruffy street style denim, Rose seems to have smartened up her act, and has been attending functions in Los Angeles in a variety of dresses, sexy skinny trousers and jackets.

Making a splash: The TV presenter decided to cool off - but Hazel had other ideas and clearly didn't want to take a swim in this social media shot

Australian designers are on the racks at Sydney's Capital L.

Jeremy and Katinka Somers are the husband-and-wife team behind Australian-based swimwear line We Are Handsome. While travel often informs their splashy photo print designs, they find plenty of inspiration closer to home in Australia. Here, they help us navigate their hip hometown of Sydney.

Capital L

"This style emporium houses a selection of the best and most varied range of Australian designers, right in the heart of Paddington. It's the perfect place to find a unique piece, a new favorite, or just to browse through the impressive collection of well-thought-out clothing, colorful prints, and unusual jewelry." (100 Oxford St.)

The Design Hunter

"This store is filled with handpicked home finds from across the globe, offering up a well-edited selection of in[door] and outside living space accoutrements. You will spend a good portion of your time in there re-imagining your living spaces. We're absolutely in love with the hides and woodcraft currently in store." (267 Bronte Rd.)

Designer Jeremy Somers with his wife and travel partner, Katinka

Salt Meats Cheese

"SMC stocks the most delicious imported and local goods. It is literally jam-packed stacked with a huge assortment of different jams, sweet treats, condiments, and a volume of dry goods that will change the way you cook. They make a beautiful selection of in-house goods; we adore the fresh homemade pasta and sauces. Every month they share their secrets on how to make that yummy pasta or cheese in all manner of cooking classes. Make sure you don't leave without trying a croque monsieur from their 'gallery of ham'—it is the best we've tasted outside of France." (41 Bourke Rd.)

Golden Age Cinema

"The Golden Age, a restored screening room in an Art Deco building, shows an inspiring selection of the great films of yesteryear. Before the show, stop in at their bar underneath the cinema; it has been fully renovated in an old world way and offers an array of imaginative cocktails and film-inspired edible specials that match the movie of the night." (80 Commonwealth St.)

Franco Franco

"Franco Franco is a recent and very welcome addition to the main street of Surry Hills that offers up plentiful servings of beautiful Italian fare. Based on the traditional style of Italian osteria cooking, this eatery preps all ingredients on-site, wood fires the pizzas, and keeps a well-stocked salumeria. There's no better place to share a banquet meal—but we will warn you, you will need to go hungry!" (628 Crown St.)

RUN THE WORLD

Three reasons why designer Marie Holman-Rao is our summer girl crush.

1. Her career success is insanely inspiring. As the president of Banana Republic, she helped oversee the retailer's transition from safari specialist to modern mega-brand. She also launched Pink, the bestselling Victoria's Secret label that gave the world sweats emblazoned with "Pink" on the behind. ("I took a picture of a woman in the airport once and thought, 'How did I ever let this happen?'" Holman-Rao's current gig is chief creative officer of 424 Fifth, a brand-new private label from Hudson's Bay and Lord & Taylor. 2. Her debut 424 Fifth collection is filled with super-covetable pieces—tank dresses, midskirts, sweet sweaters with French bulldogs on them—that move effortlessly from office to terrace. "We always put what to wear to work first," says Holman-Rao. "It's an essential concern for modern women." 3. Her own girl crush is supremely worthy. Who is it? "Beyoncé," she says, her eyes widening. "And all the amazing women in my life, of course. But Beyoncé—yes."

CURATED CALI COOL

Super Street Shop (shopsuperstreet.com), the style sphere's newest e-tailer, stocks hard-to-find accessories and ready-to-wear from the coolest fashion houses (think Rochas and Vanessa Bruno) alongside vintage jewels, cheeky stationery (we can think of a million uses for the "Bad Bitch" notecards) and skateboard decks. Escape

AYADA RESORT, MALDIVES

FRIDAY 2 MAY 2014

An idyllic and unforgettable escape.

BY JEREMY AND KATINKA SOMERS, WE ARE HANDSOME

SHARE

Destination:

Maldives

Lovers Nest:

Ayada Resort, located on the Magudhdhuva Island, Gaafu Dhaalu Atoll in the Southern Maldives.

Best For:

Couples, whether on honeymoon or just seeking a reprieve and a place to unwind from the maddening world. The resort is remote and exclusive and the villa's are the epitome of peaceful and private. With a 24 hour butler service, your very own private plunge pool and endless blissful views over the Indian ocean you really don't have a reason to leave the comfort of your expansive and decadent abode for your entire stay.

Don't miss:

A moment of indulgence at the spa, nestled between the island vegetation, the comprehensive list of services include a waterfall spa experience! All treatments allow for time in the gardens & plunge pools to lap up any lasting tension.

Trip within a trip:

The resort offers a plethora of water sports and activities on and off island to partake in. You could take a wave runner out for a thrilling jaunt or for something a little more of an island pace you could try your hand with the Catamaran. There is also excellent snorkelling along the reef that surrounds the island. Otherwise just take a casual stroll along the beach taking in the pure white sand and aqua seas. You can't help but be instantly settled and relaxed.

Out & about:

The resort caters to all palettes offering up to seven dining options, with menu's so varied you'll almost forget you're half a world away from anywhere.

Romantic Dining:

Ocean's Breeze restaurant extends over the ocean, and you'll never see a sunset more beautiful than this location. Make sure you order the seafood platter and a bottle of wine to settle in to watch the lights of the villa's twinkle over the ocean.

Seasonal highlight:

Due to it's equatorial location Ayada is a year round destination.

Retail therapy:

The island houses a well stocked boutique offering authentic handicrafts, resort wear and beautiful jewellery and souvenirs to take home and remind yourself of your time in absolute paradise.

JEREMY SOMERS

MANAGING AND CREATIVE DIRECTOR, WE ARE HANDSOME

“Shortly after starting We Are Handsome, I was speaking at a social media conference and, despite having a wealth of public speaking experience, I completely bombed. I was the most ineloquent I’ve ever been in public – I almost got booed off stage. I don’t know what it was; I just wasn’t ‘on’. After the panel finished (you know, the part where people come up to the panellists and give them business cards and pats on the back) only one person came up to me. Slightly tipsy and very smiley, she assured me I did a ‘good job’. Three years later, I married her on top of a mountain in Africa [above]. If I hadn’t screwed up that night, I’m not sure my wife Katinka would have introduced herself (she says she would have but I have my doubts), and our lives would have been very different indeed.”

TINA ARENA

MUSICIAN

“When I look back at the ‘90s and how it was supposed to be the most successful time of my life – from a career perspective, at least – it was actually the most miserable. I made so many mistakes during that time, especially personally, but my biggest error was not listening to myself. However, losing myself meant that, in the end, I had no other choice but to follow my own voice. Now I can see that I had to get lost at sea before I was able to bring my ship back in, and that turned out to be the best possible thing for me. Through that whole tumultuous period, I learned everything I didn’t want and that can only be positive.”

Tina Arena is touring nationally in August and September; tinaarena.com. Her album, Reset, is out now.

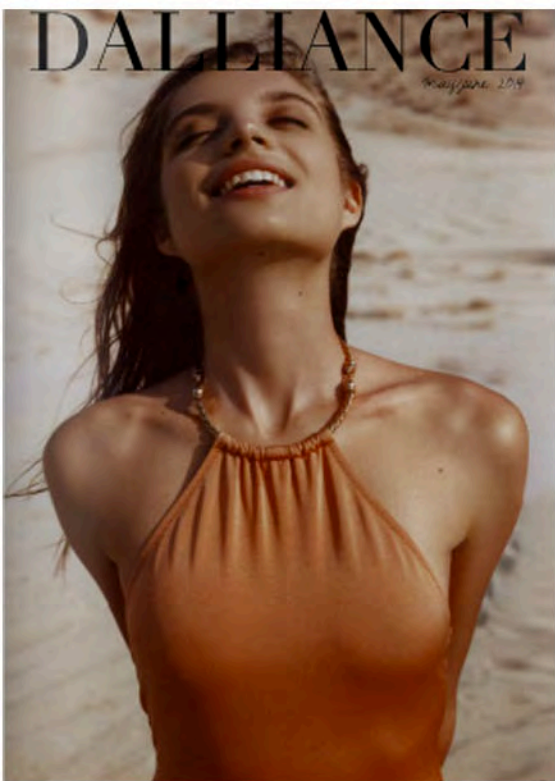

JANE CARO

BROADCASTER AND SOCIAL COMMENTATOR

“When I started out as a copywriter in advertising agencies in 1980, I was one of very few women in the industry. I was also an outspoken feminist. I remember one of my bosses saying, ‘You know, you’re pretty talented. If you just dropped this feminism stuff, I reckon you could do quite well.’ I knew he meant it kindly but I also knew I was incapable of dropping the ‘feminism stuff’, and said so. I ended up being fired when I was four months pregnant.

“Ten years on, I parlayed my creative skills into a media career; turned out the ‘feminism stuff’ gave me a point of difference, and my ‘mistake’ has turned out to be a very successful long-term strategy. Being true to yourself, in my view, always works out for the best.”

First Look: We Are Handsome's Summer 2014 Collection is Seriously Cool

MAY 21ST, 2014
POSTED IN FASHION BY MEGHAN BLALOCK

Aussie brand We Are Handsome is known mostly for their predilection for swimsuits, leotards, and other generally spandex-y pieces covered in giant faces of fierce animals like lions and tigers. With a generally hipster appeal, they've gained a strong celebrity following that includes such power fashion forces as Beyoncé.

After initially giving StyleCaster an exclusive peek into their Maldives photo shoot for the summer 2014 collection, the brand has also shared an exclusive first look at the results of that envy-inducing shoot. Designers Jeremy and Katinka Somers took inspiration for the collection from the idea of starting (and finishing) an odyssey.

"For each and every one of us, the past is always a fading memory and the future unknown," the designers tell StyleCaster. "The adventures of our history shape the journey ahead, always a chance to start fresh and make the world the place we dream of. Everyone's adventure starts with conquering the demons of lives gone by. What makes us all different is always the same."

FEED YOUR MIND

Feast for the eyes

Harvest, a new exhibition at Brisbane's GOMA, takes food from the table and the field to the gallery wall.

What we put on our forks reveals much about who we are. And for the next three months, Brisbane's Gallery of Modern Art is placing food squarely centre-frame. Harvest is the first show of its scale to focus on food and related issues, with more than 100 works displayed across the entire ground floor of the gallery. Curator Ellie Buttrose says Harvest will explore the social, political and aesthetic implications of food production, distribution and consumption. "It's about food, food production and land management practices – and the way these have been represented in art.

The way artists render these things says a lot about a view of the world."

Works gathered for Harvest range from contemporary commissions to 17th-century still lifes. California-based artists Fallen Fruit are creating sumptuous site-specific wallpaper using fossicked, imperfect fruits as a motif. Argentine artist Tomás Saraceno will hang a floating biosphere, Gardens of the Future, in the Long Gallery. "There'll also be a full replica of a Chinese supermarket embedded in the exhibition," says Buttrose. "It's not until you get up really close you realise the packaging is just filled with air." A 196-page catalogue, essays and recipe book fusing art and food is also on the table, featuring contributions from chefs such as Noma's René Redzepi, Quay's Peter Gilmore, and Ryan Squires of Esquire, Brisbane. The exhibition runs in conjunction with a program at GOMA's Australian Cinémathèque, featuring screenings of classic food movies and documentaries, plus a fortnightly GOMA Talks panel discussion. Harvest, Gallery of Modern Art, South Brisbane, Qld, 28 June-21 September. qagoma.qld.gov.au FIONA DONNELLY

MERCEDES-BENZ FASHION WEEK

Aussie model and TV personality Nikki Philips gave CLEO an exclusive report from FROW at Fashion Week for SS14/15.

"From leading Aussie designers to the new kids on the block, MBFW Australia showcased a huge range of Australian talent. Carla Zampatti's monochromatic 14/15 collection opened the week in style for the Sydney fash-pack. And We Are Handsome's upbeat, off-site show featured pythons, which took accessorising to a whole new level!

Street style is almost just as popular as the shows, with Australia's who's who in the fashion industry coming out to play. So this leads us to the all-important question: what are the trends for 14/15?

Well, hold onto your crop tops and flesh-baring pieces, as skin is still a big trend. Neoprene and bold prints are as popular as ever and we are seeing more monochrome, embellishments and soft pastel colours making an appearance. Masculine, flirty and oversized silhouettes are also hot off the runways, with glimpses of sheer fabrics and the occasional pop-colour.

My highlights included Toni Maticovski and his expertly put-together 14/15 collection, Alice McCall for her sweet and endearing pieces and By Johnny and his fun play with colours and materials. It's easy to conclude this is to be a season to look forward to for multifunctional, vibrant and exciting style. It's safe to say that 14/15 for fashion has a little something for everyone, and will let us keep those old trusty wardrobe staples and throw them into the mix, allowing us still be a part of the fashion pack and very on-trend."

The Colossus, the Whale Shark, from We Are Handsome Pre AW14

When swimwear by Aussie brand We Are Handsome first hit my desk sometime in 2010, I remember – in the way some stories occasionally managed to do – being dazzled. Photoprint was a 'new thing' (Mary Katrantzou was only just emerging from Central Saint Martin's at the time) and swimwear was either drop sexy, super cute retro or surf/sporty.

WAH's scoop-necked one-pieces covered in photos of lions, panthers, flamingos and California beach scenes were a breath of fresh air: kitsch but cool, definitely statement. Fashion editors gobbled them up – as did Beyonce and Rihanna, neither of them slouches in the swimwear arena.

Chateau and gardens panelled one piece from We Are Handsome Pre AW14

Then and now, all the imagery is unique, normally shot or illustrated by co-founder with Indhra Chagoury, Jeremy Somers (inspirations Ansell Adams and Guy Bourdin) but, even when picked up from stock libraries and messed about with, they're adapted to fit within the WAH signature.

Today, the label makes leggings, relaxed silk shifts and stand-to-attention mini dresses but it's the one-pieces and string bikinis that still provide the most perfect platform for the prints.

Latest collection Odyssey Rising offers galloping horses, a jetty, a whale shark, acid bright hummingbirds and, my personal favourite, a chateau and its gardens. They say the Aussies make the best swimwear in the world. I think they may be right.

Fly Like Rich People

Air travel is going the way of Uber. EvoLux Transportation, a new helicopter service, will offer ride-share options and on-call private flights from an array of operators. The program is starting in New York and Miami this month, with other American cities to be added in the fall. Also in the works is FlyJets, through which customers with a little tech savvy and a lot of cash will be able to bid on private jet routes, Priceline-style, or book a standard rate immediately without all the auction fuss. In other flight news, JetBlue, the most democratic of airlines, is getting in on the cabin caste system. Starting in June, flights between J.F.K. and LAX will feature first-class seats and amenities, from lie-flat beds to Saxon & Parole-cured tapas. evo-lux.com; jetblue.com — KRISTINA ENSMINGER

BY DESIGN

Pop Lighting

Trash was the inspiration for Alvaro Catalán de Ocón's vibrant line of pendant lamps, now on display at the Design Museum in London as part of its "Designs of the Year" exhibition. In 2011, while working on a project to combat pollution in Colombia, the Spanish industrial designer came up with the PET collection, its title a playful abbreviation of the polyethylene terephthalate bottles that contain soft drinks and water. He then hired Bogotá artisans to weave colored fibers into the repurposed bottles. A cluster of them above a dining table, or even just one over a nightstand, adds a welcome punch of color. "When you see the lamp," Catalán de Ocón says, "you can't help but smile." From $200, petlamp.org — TOM DELAVAN how to: bling up your beach style

Beach style alert – the coastline is calling! As the Northern hemisphere rejoices at the prospect that spring is truly here, all our minds drift towards summer, and that most summery of locations... The beach! After all, it's the quintessential image of a holiday: flip flops, sun cream, a floppy beach hat, red and white umbrellas, melting ice-creams, fine sand, turquoise water.

If you're planning a trip and humming Madonna to yourself in the office as we speak ("Holiday! Celebrate!") we have a few tips for flawless shore-side style. Aside from being gorgeous, the beach can be a treacherous place for fashion. The golden rule for sand-wise dressing, is to keep it simple.

Throw a gorgeous kaftan over your beautiful bikini. We simply adore the work of swimsuit purveyors We Are Handsome. It was "hello Handsome, indeed!" when we first encountered the brand. Here's one we've picked for our water-side fun this season:

We Are Handsome's The Hideaway Cupped Coreset

We love the clouds and cutesy image on these beauties... Why not wear summer on your sleeve, so to speak? And keeping with this team, why not team your printed swimsuit with a picture perfect coverup? We love this silky number for it's tropical and frivolous feeling:

1. PREPPY HANDBOOK

Alex Perry's Varsity collection took its cues from college life. Cheerleader skin was conjured up with a coat of St Tropez fake tan, and the makeup was all about "freshness and vitality," noted makeup maestro Napoleon Perdis, who orchestrated the "sports luxe" look. "Cheeks are balanced with a touch of matte bronzer for a natural flush, like the girls have just stepped off the hockey field," said Perdis. "Everything's about adding luminosity without using a million products."

2. GARDEN PARTY

Petal power reigned with floral headdresses at We Are Handsome, while Toni Maticevski's finale saw models balancing orchids in their mouths. To get the pretty-in-pink look, Nigel Stanislaw, from Maybelline New York, dusted blush "for peach cheeks à la Marilyn Monroe."

6 Swim Looks That Will Make Absolutely Every Woman Look Freaking Hot

CHARLES MANNING

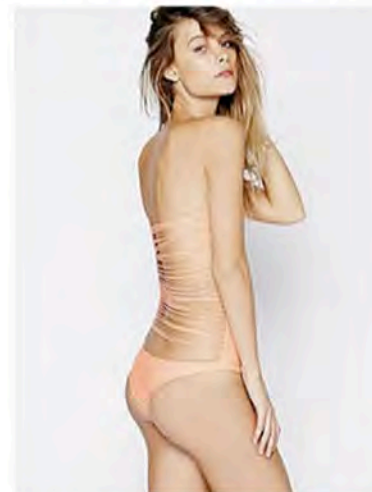

FASHION TIPS & TRENDS
MAY 19, 2014

All eyes on you, but only where you want them.

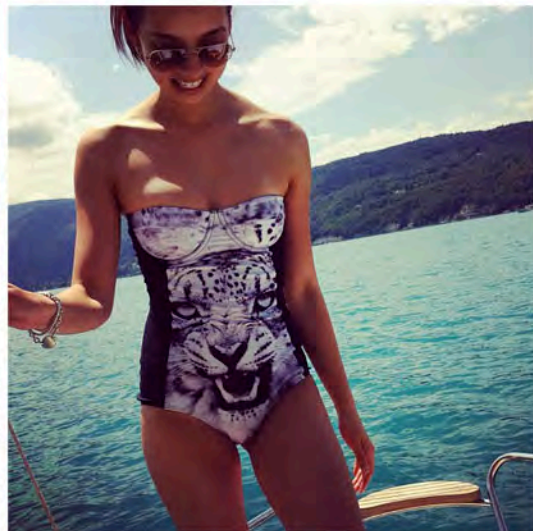

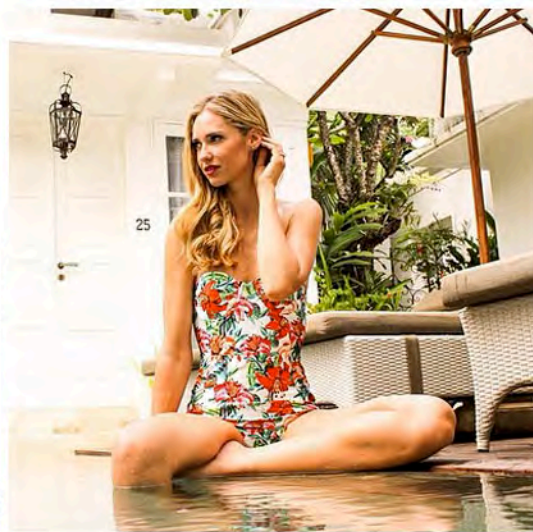

Don't buy into all that toxic noise about "pear-shaped women need to wear this and plus-size women need to wear that." This swimwear guide is completely size-blind. No matter how big, skinny, or fit you are, all of these are guaranteed to make you look like a hot piece on the beach this summer.

5. Get a little weird.

The more unusual something is, the more you're going to want to look at it. A one-piece covered in sexy, skin-flashing straps is going to get a lot more attention than a one-piece without all the bells and whistles. And nobody is going to be able to look away if you've got a giant parrot on your swimsuit.
